

Still Be Lovin' You

A Song by Vernon Louis Hicks

Huuh uuuuu uhwhoaaaa whoooooa wuh uh oh oh

If the moon and the stars should disappear
I'd still be lovin' you
Lovin' you
Find a quiet place in the atmosphere
Room enough for two
You and me baby

When the poets have no rhymes
And the world runs out of time
I'll still be lovin' you

Don't care if the sun don't shine
I'll still be lovin' you
Lovin' you
And when the poets have no rhymes
I'll still be lovin' you

In the eye of a storm or a hurricane
I'll find my way to you
It's true baby
'Round the world, 'round my heart
And back again
What more can I do

Want to taste love so divine
Feel your heartbeat next to mine
Just want to love you

Don't care if the sun don't shine
Still be lovin' you
Lovin' you, girl
And when the poets have no rhymes
I'll still be lovin' you
I'll still be lovin' you

Oooohhhhh wuuuuuu

Want to taste love so divine
Feel your heartbeat next to mine
Just want to love you

Don't care if the sun don't shine
I'll still be lovin' you
Lovin' you, girl
And when the poets have no rhymes
I'll still be lovin' you
Lovin' you

Don't care if the sun don't shine
I'll still be lovin' you
Lovin' you
And when the poets have no rhyme
I'll still be lovin' you
I'll still be lovin' you

Don't care if the sun don't shine
I'll still be lovin' you
Lovin' you
